arrest in connection with civil rights demonstrations here this year. All 11 were released after posting $10.50 bail each.

The women arrested were Nancy D. Handy, 25, an office manager of 301 Santa Barbara Avenue, Daly City; Kris Schivo, 20, a mail girl of 1215 Laguna Street; Elizabeth A. Goldblatt, 18, a student of 1546 Waller Street, and Tracey A. Sims, 18, a clerk of 307 Page Street.

The others were Lavell Holmes, 30, a social science teacher at Menlo-Atherton High School in Atherton; Mark Hansen, 32, a printer of 3014 Clement Street; Alan S. Pezaro, 33, a student of 10 Fountain Street; John R. Handy, 30, a student of 301 Santa Barbara Avenue, Daly City, and Harold E. Supriano, 29, a social worker of 633 Redwood Street.

CORE has been picketing the rental agency on Saturdays for a month. Peitchel on August 16 vowed he would close his business for good if CORE picketed him, but he did not.

Holmes said he phoned Peitchel on Thursday and made an appointment to see him yesterday regarding a rental. But when Peitchel saw that he was a Negro, Holmes said, he refused to open his door.

Francois, who accompanied Holmes, said he asked Peitchel if he was open for business. Peitchel replied that he was, but still would not let them in, Francois said.

It was then that the sitdown demonstration was organized Francois said.

The demonstrators were booked under a section of the trespassing law that makes it a misdemeanor to interfere with a business.

Francois said demonstrations will continue until Peitchel stops discriminating against Negroes. The latter was not available for comment.
